In Indiana there are four State tickets in the field -Republican, Democratic, Green Tilden ? Whoever is nominated at Cincinnati must lead the Democratic tuneral. Seymour will take care that he will not be self by a bayonet charge at the battle of the corpse. Among the points in the campaiga which the Democrats do not like is the fact that all the Republicans are going to vote the Republican ticket. This has not been done since 1868. The effect of this is what makes the Democrats so anxious to operations about Petersburg. On the throw mud. The nomination of Hancock is a bitter pill for the majority of the Democratic party. When he was fighting to save the Union, more than one-half of the party in the North were violent copperheads, and were doing all they could to defeat the Union army. Somebody's got to eat a large amount of crow.

Two hundred years ago the coming 31 of July, Father Hennepin, the famous missionary, discovered the Falls of Saint Anthony, and this fact will lead the citizens of Minneapolis to celebrate that im. portant event. The festivities on that occasion will give more than ordinary enjoyment to the people of the "Gopher State," and especially to the intelligent and enterprising people of that beautiful. thrifty, and pretentious city-Minneapolis. President Hayes and his Cabinet have been invited, but it is not known whether they will accept.

The more the people understand James A. Garfield, the more he is honored, and An appeal will be taken to the Supreme the more abiding is the confidence the public have in him. There is something in the character of the man that challenges admiration. He is a Christian gentleman of the highest type. He stands to-day as the truest and highest type of American statesmanand. He was never known to barter away his honor, never surrendered to political schemers or to corrupt jobbers, never used his yast power in Congress for personal aggrandizement, and in nothing did he fall below that standard which would be ques- he had become largely interested in busitionable for a Christian gentleman to do. ness in the Far West, principally at Den-

The question before the Cincinnati Convention is not one of principle, but one of "political arithmetic." In the first place, votes in the South. It is hardly reasonable to suppose that this can be changed. The next thing is to find the other 47 votes one in the Electoral College. This fact makes New York a very important State, and ordinary observation will show how impossible it is for the Democrats to win in the coming contest without New York.

That State, therefore, is the key to the situation. As the Gazette said the other day, the Republicans may afford to lose New York provided they carry Oregon, Indiana, and Connecticut, but under no circumstances can the Democrats lose the State and win. To leave New York out of the list of Democratic States would involve the necessity of carrying Indians, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maine, California, Neyada and Oregon-a total of 49 votes, three more than are necessary for a choice. If we include

New York, it will require but Indiana or

New Jersey and Connecticut, or California,

Oregon and Nevada, to make up the required majority in the Electoral College.

In other words, if the Democrats cannot carry New York, their only chance of winning depends upon carrying seven doubtful States in addition to the Solid

South, while it they can find a candidate capable of carrying New York, they need will probably prove a surprise to the masses of the party that looked for the nomination of a prominent candi-didate. Convinced that the diabolical acts elsewhere for a candidate. Seymour saw

The only hope for the Convention was to take up a man who had no civil record, and who would be acceptable to all factions of the party. The choice fell upon

General Hancock, and as a compromise candidate he is probably the best the Convention could select. He was born in The nomination was made with reflection on the bitter experience of four and eight years ago. But this can not save the Democratic party from defeat in 1880.

This is one of the campaigns when the might and power of the Republican party is a campaign in which the Republicans will yote solidly for one of the purest men and the ablest statesmen of the time. General Hancock, whatever may be his pers nal worth, can not save his party from defeat. The Republicans mean business this year, and in the fight will come to the front in a solid column which will guar-

Such was his personal strength that he could easily shoulder a cannon weighing 1,109 pounds, and he had seen him take a man in his right hand, pass over the floor and dance his head against the ceiling with as much ease as if he had been a doll baby. The man's weight was 195 pounds. Partaking of the patriotic enthusiasm of the times, he entered the American revolutionary army at the age of 26. He was present at the storming of Stony Point, and was the first soldier after Major Gibbon, who entered the fortress, on which occasion he received a bayonet wound in the thigh. He was at Brandywine, Monmouth, and other battles at the north, and was transferred to the south under General Green, where he was engaged in the actions of the Cowpens. Guilford Court House, &c. He was so brave and possessed such confidence in his prowess that he was positively fearless. A LIFE'S SAVINGS LOST.

How an Italian Citizen of the United States was Swindled in Paris. From the New York Times.

Among the 302 steerage passengers check on the outward man. anded at Castle Garden from the steamer Canada, from Havre, on Wednesday, was a man who came ashore crying and seemingly heart-broken. His unusual appearance attracted the notice of the garden authorities, and in reply to Superintendent When it's a little bear. Jackson's questions, the forlorn man told how he had been robbed of $8,800 by confidence operators in Paris. He gave his name as John Tenase, an Italian by birth, but a citizen of the United States. He came to America 28 years ago, and in 1861 went to Colorado, where he became a cattle raiser, and made some money. Then he invested in a farm, and was very successful. Last winter it occurred to him that if he should turn all his property into money he could go back and spend the rest of his life in his native country, living on the interest of his money. In May last he sold his farm and other property and startfor Italy with his wife and five children and a brother. On reaching this city he purchased his passage tickets, and with the rest of his money bought a draft for Munroe & Co., Paris. Tenase sailed on the measles. This compelled him to remain two weeks in Liverpool while his children were getting well in a private hospital. Tenase and his wife put up in a boarding house. His brother hurried on to Italy. Two days before Tenase left Liverpool he met in his boarding house a man who claimed to be an Italian, also returning home from America. The two naturally associated together, and the new triend accompanied the Tenase family to London. On the train a second Italian introduced himself to the party, saying he had been to Liverpool to collect some money, and was returning to Paris with it. He attached himself to the party and traveled with them, both he and the other stranger paying particular attention to the children. Arrived in Paris, the three men strolled out for a walk. during which Tenase drew the $8.800 on his draft. Soon atter drawing the money, receiving goods every day and and while they were strolling about the city an apparently crazy Italian stepped up to the party, and after asking if they were not Italians, expressed his joy in the most exaggerated manner in meeting fellow countrymen. The new comer followed the men, throwing gold coin at them, telling them to keep it, and acting his part so successfully that Tenase was thoroughly convinced that the man was a lunatic. In had warned Tenase that he ought not to risk his money by carrying it with him and urged him to return to the hotel and leave it with the clerk for safe keeping One of them carried a small satchell, and his money in it. Returning to ing goods and prices in all the Tenase was induced the hotel, the satchel was handed to the clerk, one of the men first opening it and reaching in his hand "to make sure that the money was there all right." Then the four men resumed their walk, ate lunch together, and drank some wine. In some way which Tenase cannot explain, his companions gradually dropped off, until he was left alone before he realized it. Then he went back to his hotel, got the satchel and took it to his room. He waited for the other men to come, and did not open the little lower prices than anybody satchel until the next morning. His money, of course, was gone. Tenase told else. Give us a chance and we his story to the American consul in Paris, and the latter offered either to send the victim and his family back to America, or to forward them to Italy. Tenase chose to return, thinking, he says, that if he had got begin life over again it had better be done in Colorado where he has lived so long. After hearing his story, the commissioners of emigration sent Tenase to the commisstoners of charities and correction. He returned to the Garden yesterday, saying that the commissioners had told them to call again on Monday. He is anxious to No. 12 West Milwaukee street, get back to Colorado, but is entirely without the means to do so. About a year ago an Alsatian immigrant named George Schauer, was swindled out of $6,000 in coin in a similar manner by confidence men in this city, and the Castle Garden authorities believe that Tenase has suffered at the hands of the same thieves. In Schauer's case the thieves substituted rolls of lead for the packages of coin.

giant maple. They are moving foot by ous. foot as they crop the juicy grass, and living waves rise and fall as the herd slowly sweeps on. Afar out to the right and left-mere specks on the plain, are the flankers-brave old buffaloes, which catch a bite of grass and then snift the air and scan the horizon for intimation of danger. They are the sentinels of the herd, and right well can they be trusted.

The wolf creeps nearer! All the afternoon the great herd has fed in peace, and as it now slowly moves toward the distant river it is all unconscious that danger is rear. Look you well and cane-bottom chair very carefully before pense of any other Stove. Satwatch the wolf, for you are going to see such a sight as not one man in ten thousand has ever beheld. Creep-crawl-skulk-now behind a

Wounded or ailing, he has been left alone to get on as best he may; and his green eyes light up with flercer blaze as he draws nearer to his

There! No, he is yet too far away. Creep-creep! Now he is twenty feet away-now fifteen-now ten; He bugs the earth, gathers his feet under him, and he bounds through the air as if shot from a gun. He is rolling the calf over and over on the grass in three seconds after he Now watch?

A cry of pain from the call-a furious bellow from the mother as she wheels and charges the wolf-a startled movement from a dozen of the nearest animals, and rush begins. The one wolf is mag nified into a hundred, the hundred into a thousand. Short, sharp bellows—notes of alarm-a rush, and in fifteen minutes after the wolf has wet his fangs in blood, that living mass is in motion to get away from an unknown terror.

away-again waves rise and fall as the cowards behind rush upon those in front who wait to sniff the air and learn the danger. In one minute the alarm runs down the herd to the leaders, further than the eye can see, and the entire , herd is going off at a mad gallop, heads down, eyes rolling, and no thought but that of escape. If Lake Erie were to dash itself against a wall the shock would be no greater than the awful crash with which this mass of rattling hoofs, sharp horns and hairy bodies would meet it. The clatter of hoofs and rattle of borns would drown the noise of a brigade of cavalry galloping over a stone paved road. Ride out on their trail. Here when the stampede began the ground is torn and furrowed as if a thousand cannon had been firing solid shots at targets. Here and there are calves which have been gored or crushed-here and there older animals with broken legs and disabling wounds. Here, where the herd was fairly off, you might as well hunt for a gold dollar as a blade of grass. You look for three miles as you look across it. It is a trail of dirt and dust, and ruts and furrows, where half an hour ago was a carpet of green grass or firm using that name. He still remains in the and smiling flowers. emigrant wagons. A camp fire blazes up to boil the kettles-men, women and children stand about, peering over the setting sun at the distant mountains and glad that Is It a Puzzle to Know Where to their journey is almost done. Butterflies come and go on lazy wing-the crickets chirp cheerly in the grass, and the eagles sailing in the blue evening air have no warning to give.

Hark! Is that thunder? That rumble comes again as they look into each other's face. It grows louder as whisper. No! A thousand times better tor them if sayage Pawnee dared ride down where those long-barreled rifles could speak in defense of the peaceful camp.

"A stampede of buffaloes!" gasps one of the men as he catches sight of the advance guard under the awful cloud of dust. Rifles are held ready for a shot, and the children climb up on the heavy wagon wheels to see the strange procession gallop

Here they come ! Crack ! crack ! crack ! from three rifles, and a shout as each bullet tells. Next instant a shaggy head, followed by a dust-browned body, rushes through the camp. Then another and another. The men shout and wave their hands-the women and children turn paler yet.

The roar and din shut every other sound, and the wagons jar and tremble with the concussion. Now another shaggy headanother half a dozen-a score-a hundred-a great living wave which sweeps along with the power of a tornado, followed by others more fierce and strong, and the camp is blotted off the face of the earth more completely than by any power of heaven. Nothing to be seen, not a shout to be heard. Wave followed wave across the spot-ever the bank -into the stream. and across, and when the last of the herd had passed the keenest hunter can find nothing on that spot of wood or iron, or cloth or bone, or flesh, to prove that a | tional dozen men, women and children were there wiped out of existence and reduced to shred and dust.

The Traveling Salesman. We are glad that somebody has a good word to say for this much abused class. Here is Bob Burdette's tribute in the Burlington Hawkeye: - "What would I do without 'the boys?" How often they have been my friends. I go to a new town. I don't know one hotel from another. I don't know where to go. The man with the samples gets off at the same station. I follow him without a word or a tremor. He calls to the 'bus driver by name, and orders him to 'get out of this now,' as soon as we are seated. And when I follow him I am inevitably certain to go to the best house there is in the place. He shouts at the clerk by name and fires a joke at the landlord as we go in. He looks over my shoulders as I register atter him, and hands me his card with a shout of recognition. the clerk assign me to ninety-eight. 'Nine-ty nothing,' he shouts, 'who's in fifteen?' The clerk says he is saving fifteen for Judge Dryasdust. 'Well, he be blowed,' says my cheery friend, 'give him the attic and put this gentleman in fifteen.' And the clerk hesitates, he seizes the pen and gives me fifteen himself, and then he calls the porter and orders him to carry up my baggage and put a fire in fifteen, and then in the same breath adds, "What time will you be down to supper Mr Burdette ?" And he waits for me, and seeing that I am a stranger in the town, he sees that I am cared for and that the waiters do not neglect me; he tells me about the town, the people, and the business. He is breezy, cheery, sociable, full of new stories, always good natured; he frisks with rights and overflows with thousand-mile tickets; Cutlery and China Ware, Job Lot of 378 Vases a special prices; Fine French China Moss Rose 5 Piece Tea Sett, $12 00. THE RETURN FROM ELBA

On the 25th of February, 1815, the Princess Pauline gave a banquet to the principal inhabitants of the island of Elbs. With great secrecy Napoleon had made preparations to leave the island and return his carriage to receive them. Can pen or to France. A small brig was at anchor in the offing, and three small merchant vessels. In these four vessels, during the night, a thousand troops were embarked, not one, not even their officers, knowing where they were bound At mid-day, under a salute of cannon, the emperor went on board the brig, and the little fleet set yard of the Tuleries. The moment the sail for the invasion of France, and for the carriage stopped he was seized by those overthrow of the Bourbons, sustained by the immense standing army of France and all the allied armies of Europe hundred in number, said to then: "We are going to France-to Paris."

The exultation was boundless, for, not withstanding past reverses, every soldier had unlimited confidence in the fortunes of the emperor. The second day of their Never was such a scene witnessed in hisvoyage a Bourbon man of-war bore down upon them. The so diers were concealed below, while Napoleon stood by the side of the captain on the quarter deck. After the exchange of a few words the man of war inquired after the emperor at E ba. Napoleon seized the trumpet and shouted over the waters: "He is marvelously well."

Toward evening of the third day the elue hills of France were seen in the splendor of the setting sun. In the early twilight of the next morning they had reached the shore in the Galf of Juan, and the emperor immediately landed his tollowers on the lonely beach, and bivou scked in the olive grove near the shere. Pointing to an olive leaf he said: "It is the symbol of peace. It is ucky omen, and it will be realized." he said, to prevent his being "collared by debt. The trouble with him is that he was Atter a moment's silince, a voice nouted out, "Vive l'Empereur!" It was ne signal for a general burst of acclaim rom soldiers and peasants, and for a scene of eathusiasm such as no other man on sarth ever excited. All military order was at an end. The troops rushed in in-rescribable tumult around the emperor, asch one eager to grasp his hand, and tears of joy flowed freely. The Bourbon commander put spurs to his horse and disap-

"I have come," said Napoleon, "because I rely upon the people and upon you. The arone of the Bourbons is illegitimate; it is not raised by the voice of the nation. The people are threatened with the rerewal of the feudal abases from which ou victories had delivered them." Grenoble was one of the most important ortified cities of France. It was midnight

s Napoleon approached the walls. The commandants locked the gates and concealed the keys. They were poweriess. The soldiers and people rose as one man, and tearing the gates for their hinges, in a countless crowd. delirious with joy, rushed out to meet the emperor. With torches and illuminations, and the ringing of bells and frantic shouts, they conducted him to Napoleon allowed his little band twenty tour Lours for rest at Grenoble, and then ontinued his journey toward Lyons. His path was thronged with rejoicing thou saude, while bonfires blazet all night a or g on the adjacent hills. The intelligence of keep one of the largest, the most varied, and best stock of the Bourbons were in consternation. Lyons containing 200,000 inhabitants, was out two hundred and fifty miles from the capital. There were three regiments there, and, in addition, 20,000 of the national guard, well disciplined and armed. But soldiers and officers shouted, "Vive I' Empereur!" and the whole city, like an uniulation, surged from the gates to meet aim. Never b fore had the streets of Lyons witnessed such a delirium of joy. Here Napoleon remained three days, organizing anew his government, and attending to he myriad cares involved in governing a astion of 30,000,000 people, and in preparing to meet the 2,000 000 troops which allied Europe thad in arms against him.

On the 13th of March he resumed his novement toward Paris. He had now entered the most populous regions of France. the roads were everywhere lined with crowds. Triumphal arches spanned the streets of every village, while a continuous roar of acclaim accompanied every step. At Chalons he was surprise to see several

It was no longer necessary to take any precautions for his safety, and he drove rapidly on, as defenseless as a private gen-tlemen. On the 16th, in his open barouche he drove lxty miles, from Autun to Avalon. At Auxerre, twenty five miles farther along, he met Marshal Nye. Here the marshal abandoned the Bourbons and joined the Emperor, an abandonment which subsequently cost him his life. On the 19th the Emperor traveled seventy-five miles to Fontainebleau. It was, however, four o'clock in the morning before he reached the palace. He was now within forty miles of the metropolis. The terrified Bourbons had fled to seek the protection of the armies of northern Europe. They had, however, established at Melun, half way between Fontainebleau and Paris. a formidable force of nearly one hundred

Don't Cut the String.

Said one of the most successful merchants of Cleveland, Ohio, a day or two since, to a lad who was opening a parcel: "Young man, until those strings-don't cut them."

It was the first remark he had made to a new employe. It was the first lesson the lad had to learn, and it involved the principles of success or failure in business career. Pointing to a well-dressed man behind the counter, he said :

"There is a man who always whips out his scissors and cuts the strings of the package in three or four places. He is a good salesman, but will never be anything more. I presume he lives from hand to He only took men enough with him, as mouth, and I presume is more or less in never taught to save. I told the boy just now to untie the string not so much from the value of the string as to teach him that everything is to be saved and nothing wasted. It the idea can be firmly impressed upon the mind of a beginning in life that nothing was made to be wasted, you have laid the foundation of success.

The moral of this little incident is selfevident. A young man well brought up a business house. The habit of waste in little things is noticeable, and becomes a less sky. BRIEFLETS.

-Prayer meetings to-night. -Prof. Searing was in the city to-day. -The shadowy sides of the streets are most popular now. -The Sisters of the convent have an entertainment in Lappin's hall next Monday evening.

-O. H. Fethers to-day went to Neillsville, Clark county, to attend to some law business there.

-Well, now, we do feel badly. N chance to grumble this morning, for the Chicago mail came all right.

-Clarence Clark graduated yesterday from the law school at Madison, having passed through his course with credit to himself-

-Miss Hettie Stowe left this morning for Chicago, when she will join Mis Binn, and together they will proceed eastward.

-Leslie Treat arrived in the city again last evening, and has concluded to engage in business here, and make Janesville his home for good. -The Chicago and Northwestern railroad company offer to sell round trip tick ets from all its stations for the Fourth of July celebrations, at reduced rates. -A number of Janesville folk wi probably go to Beloit next Wednesday evening to hear Remenys, who plays at the Senior concert. Moseley has the tickets for sale. -The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Pau Railway will sell excursion tickets beall stations on their lines, at greatly reduced rates, July 3d, 4th, and 5th, good for return until July 6th. -Rev. J. P. Haire is announced to preach in the Congregational church at Milton next Sunday morning, and Rev. T. P. Sawin before the Christian Association of the college to-morrow evening.

-A woman, claiming to hail from Delavan, and having with her two children, attracted considerable attention on the streets to-day by the way she was shaking up the young ones and causing them to beliow. The little girl tried to run away from her, but it was no go.

-Arrangements are on toot now for having a celebration on the Fifth of July, by having a picnic up the river, in which the Janesville Guards, Bower City Band and others join. It is proposed to have exhibition and competitive drills, target chooting, dancing, and other attractions.

-Of late some of the boys who delight in cooling off by a bath in the river, have arrayed themselves in sufficient clothing to avoid any unseemly exposure, and have thus thought that they could bathe with impunity. From the reading of the law it seems that even when arrayed in bath ing suits they are forbidden from bathing or swimming in the river, or any mill

-Street Commissioner Croft complains that some of the gutters which have lately been cleaned out are being rapidly filled up again, by folk throwing into them rubbish of all sorts, grass cut from the lawn, limbs trimmed from the trees, slops, tin cans, etc. If this way of doing is not stopped it will be necessary to make examples of a few of these careless ones, and then a howl may be expected.

BELLING OUT AND GOING OFF. As will be see by an advertisement in another column, J. H. Wingate proposes to sell at retail and at cost his entire stock day for a short visit. He reports crops and of dry goods until about the 10th of July, business good when he will remove the balance of his stock from the city. He intends to locate elsewhere and keep a general stock. While all will regret Mr. Wingate's intention of removing from the city, yet his selling off gives an excellent chance for those desiring dry goods to get them at just what they cost in New York and Chicago, which is patiently waiting for the next shower. makes quite a saving.

A JOYOUS EVENING.

Last evening there was a very pleasant gathering of friends at the home of Mr J. V. Hugunin, about three miles from this city. About fifty friends joined in this occasion, and had a most joyous time Every possible feature of hospitality was manifested, and even the peacock, which strolled down the front gate as if to welcome the guests, seemed to catch some inspiration from the occasion, and instead of hiding his beauty, spread his bright feathers in delight. All possible arrangements for enjoyment were planned and successfully executed. Refreshments were served, including cakes, ices, and fruit, and the balance of the evening was given over to singing, chatting and social enjoyment. It was one of the pleasantest gatherings yet put on the record of the heated term.

SUDDEN DEATH.

This morning about half-past 10 o'clock leath came with scarcely any warning to William H. Read, of La Prairie, one of the oldest and best known residents of this county. Mr. Read came to this city this morning and after transacting some business at the bank and other places, started with his son for home, and stopped near Lemuel Paul's place to see about some cattle. As he and his son were inthe field driving some cattle, Mr. Read ran a little, a thing which he seldom has done of late, as he has been warned by symptoms of heart disease that any sort of undue exertion might cause death. As he was running along he fell as though he had stumbled, but he told the boy to go on driving the cattle, and the latter did so. Mr. Read managed to get to the road, and unhitched his horse, when he fell again, and died almost instantly, and as soon as the necessary aid could be had, he was taken to his home.

The news soon spread, and the rapidity | Then the people become as singular as with which it passed from one to the other. along the streets, and the tenderness and sorrow manifest in the eye and voice, told how well the man now gone was known, and how all felt a share in the loss.

Mr. Read was born in Maine, and was about sixty years of age. He first came to this county in 1840, and has lived here ever since, struggling through adverse circumstances, until he had secured considerable property, and in his prosperity his home was crowned with a hospitality, which made it a favorite resort. His large residence has been the scene of many social gatherings, from all parts of the county, and all invited there found good cheer and abundance. He was a man of striking peculiarities, of strong likes and dislikes, of a frankness which sometimes conflicted with conventionalities, but which always commanded on the wire, and her extraordinary treak respect for the man. A man of industrious habits, fond of family and friends, he won for himself acquaintances which ripened the more into friendship, the more one saw of his inner manhood.

He leaves a wife and a number of children, and to those who are thus suddenly called upon to mourn, the sympathies of all will be turned. For a long time he has felt that when death came it would come suddenly, and has often so expressed himselt, and yet even this seems to lessen but little | man. the real suddenness of the final realization ot this fear.

BARNUM'S SHOW.

How It Struck the Milwankee Folk the Other Day.

Barnum's show had a big day of it in Milwaukee last Monday. The mammoth tents were visited by at least 14,000 people in the afternoon and evening, and everybody was delighted. As the big show is soon to be here, the following from the Milwaukee Sentinel will be read with presented. That tiny lady, Nellie Keeler, is receiving company for the day; the German giant, topped out with a burnished silver helmet, looms above the average men and women like a monarch of the torest above his surroundings, and the tattoed Greek, in all his loveliness, holds his levee near by, while a naked Zulu danced wildly around among the people with his spears, shield, and ball-tipped shillalah. On either side wonderful automatons interest the crowds, while, further on, the animal world is represented from the tiniest of monkeys to the unwieldy elephant. their surroundings. The nettled tax payer laughs himself into happiest of moods because a certain baboon reminds him of the assessor down in his ward, the more speculative count the toes of the elephant to determine his nativity, the jocose man thinks the camels have lip enough to deserve classification with certain ward politicians he names, and so on through the catalogue. The rhinocerus, the bippopotamus, the sea lion, are all lively specimens of their kind, and the animal kingdom, as Barnum presents it, is really all he advertises it to are promenaded before the circus is reached. Here, from comfortable sittings, one is amused fully two hours by the kings and queens of the arena. Trained elephants, oxen, horses and doves, are introduced at intervals, between the wonderful equestrianism. Ground and lofty umbling unsurpassed, and, finally, the wonderful Zazel in her feats of allowing herself to be fired from a mammoth cannon closes an entertainment as interesting as anyone could wish. From the grand entree to the grand finale an artistic cleyerness prevails. The character of Mr. Barnum's show i so well understood that the better class of citizens patronize his entertainments. This was observed beyond question yesterday, and also that the rude, yerbose peanut venders were not allowed to move about among the spectators. And these are but few of the namable commendable features of the new management by the great show-

May think, owing to our silence on the subject this Spring, that we have gone out of the Merchant Tailoring business. Sorry we couldn't have invited you to call before, but our business in this department, ever since last February, has been so great that we have been unable to procure a sufficient number of Journeymen Tailors to fill orders, and have turned away a large number of customers who were in a hurry for garments. We do not expect this trade to last all Summer, but as we are anxious to keep the ball rolling, and get rid of as many Spring Woolens as possible, we shall from this date reduce prices on all light weight goods to order.

Those who are not already provided will please make a note of this, as the warm weather is yet to come.

We have been continually receiving new styles of goods and the stock will be found very well assorted at
